LIVER PILLS

FOR THE CURE OF Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint, DYSPRISIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver. DAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sen ation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendent. The patient complains of wearines, and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are lew; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body,

JACKSON, OHIO, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1878.

O world unknown! O world unseen! In which my spirit soon will be, Could I but pierce the veil between This slowly failing world and thee Could I but catch, though faint and dim, One glimpse of thine immortal shore— One note of that celestial hymn That angels sing forever more!

Faith

Could but one voice the silence break That doth encompass thee around; And in the breathless stillness wake The faintest echo of a sound!

If in the darkness I might trace Bright with a glory born of thee. The shadowy outline of a face, Or a dear hand stretched out to me! Catch but one whisper, one pale gleam
Of light eternal, just a touch
Of some one gone before - t'would seem
To my poor soul so much, so much!

But Faith alone, with brow serene, Stands by my side and points the way. And all the drifted clouds between Grow bright and luminous as day. Her voice through all the spaces rings A triumph o'er death's awful caim, And my glad soul responsive sings An answer to her joyful psalm.

Her strong arm lifts me far above Into a realm of purer air; I feel a sweet sustaining love That will go with me everywhere. O heavenly Faith, with me abide! Forsake me not, thou truest friend!
Do thou but lead, O fearless guide!
And I will follow to the end.

For thou hast wide the portals thrown, And through thy blessed eyes I see The glory of the world unknown Where my freed spirit soon shall be, -|Springfield Republican.

Her Dream. I dteamed," she sai! - with heavy hearts we listened—
"That I was in a garden wondrous fair;
"Twas early morning, and the dew-drops glistened tened
Like gems of rarest beauty everywhere.
Sweet was the air, and tremulous with singing
Of hidden song-birds waking from their dreams,
And in the west the pale moon still was cling-

beams
Of a most glorious sun—so bright! so bright!
That I, at first, could scarcely bear the light.

"That all around me blossomed countless flowers,
Tall lities than the early snow-flakes writer,
And bluebells like the sky in summer hours;
And near a silver gate, on green stem swaying,
A pale rose bloomed—the sweetest ever born;
And as I gazed I heard an angel saying,
"The roses here know neither death nor thorn;
Enter, dear soul.'" Her spirit upward flew,
And while we wept we said, "Her dream's come true."
